INTRODUCTION

In 1948 at a Royal Society Scientific Information Conference, J. D. Bernal reported on a preliminary analysis of a study on the use of scientific literature. The object of the questionnaire was to find out directly from working scientists what they had read, why they had read it, and what use they had made of the information. In his report, Bernal stated that an overwhelming proportion of scientists read and appreciated reviews and that reviews formed a very important and increasing part of general background reading.

The reading habits of medical investigators, clinicians, and educators, and of workers in fields allied to medicine amply confirm today the observations of Bernal some twenty years ago. Indeed, as biomedical literature expands, the need for reviews appears more obvious.

Accordingly, in keeping with its tradition of service to the health professions, the National Library of Medicine is issuing its Bibliography of Medical Reviews as a separate monthly publication. We will continue to list reviews in Index Medicus as well.

Through the Monthly Bibliography of Medical Reviews, the Library hopes to provide health professionals with an easily accessible desk reference tool for guidance to the latest reviews in the journal literature of biomedicine.

Medical reviews are defined by the Library as articles which are well-documented surveys of the recent biomedical journal literature. In most cases the articles include a list of references either in the body of the paper or as a bibliography. Articles which include case reports are considered reviews only when the case report serves to document the subject of the review.

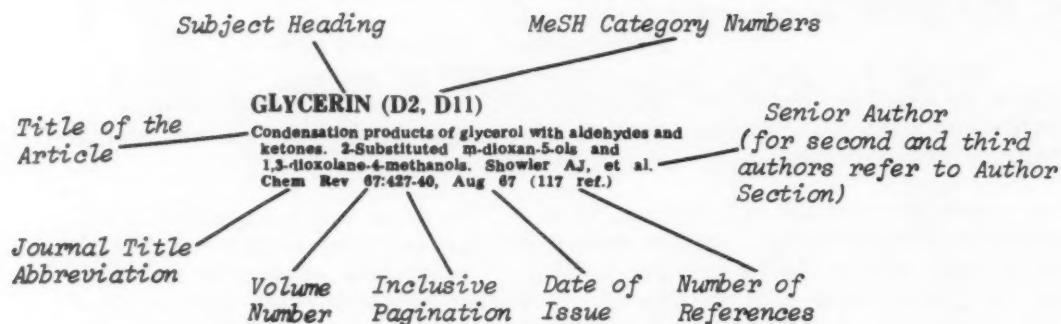

Articles with the following characteristics are not considered as reviews in this bibliography: case reports or original research articles containing a review of the literature as an adjunct; statistical and epidemiological surveys; historical reviews; bibliographies which comprise only a listing of references; monthly summaries of subject areas which appear as a regular feature in journals; theses; and lengthy articles covering many aspects of a specific subject which are more appropriately considered as refresher courses rather than reviews.

SUBJECT HEADINGS

Users of Monthly Bibliography of Medical Reviews will find an acquaintance with Medical Subject Headings (MeSH) useful in determining which subject headings are most appropriate for their needs. MeSH, the National Library of Medicine's authority list, is the technical language which provides controlled subject access to the biomedical literature indexed for MEDLARS. MeSH is published as Part 2 of the January Index Medicus (see list of publications, inside front cover).

Although the most specific terms available in MeSH are used in indexing articles for Index Medicus, broader headings are used for reviews to enable grouping of similar material.
